Auction Application Online Filing Help

Auction Application Manager

Anyone who wants to participate in an FCC auction must submit an FCC Form 175, the Application to Participate in an FCC Auction. This form provides the FCC with information about the applicant and the licenses on which the applicant wants to bid. It also provides details about ownership, any joint bidding agreements, and other information that the FCC requires.

The FCC accepts new auction applications during the initial filing window for an auction. Applicants may correct or modify anything on the form and submit it as many times as needed while this window is open. The applications are not viewable by the public until the Status Public Notice is released.

During the subsequent resubmit filing window, applicants may only make minor modifications to their auction application. Minor modifications include a change to the applicant's address, phone or fax number, applicant status, names of bidders, or contact information. By contrast, major modifications include a change to the license selections, bidding credit eligibility, applicant name, or certifying information.

Create or Review Auction Application

Once you have logged in to the Auction Application Manager, the Create or Review Auction Application page appears. This page lets you create a Form 175 application for an upcoming auction, by prompting you for the information the form requires. It also lets you review or modify any applications you have already created. The Create or Review Auction Application page also lists past auctions and provides links that let you access selected FCC announcements and releases associated with these auctions, such as Public Notices.

The Create New Application section lists each upcoming FCC auction whose initial filing window is open, and tells when the window will close.

To create a new application for an auction, click the appropriate auction number. This produces Applicant Information, the first page of the Auction Application.

Auctions for which you have started creating an application or have submitted an application are listed under Review or Modify Existing Applications. To review or continue working on an existing application, click its auction number. This produces the application's Summary page and places you in a view/edit mode. The application is not actually submitted to the Commission for review until you certify and submit it.

Documentation

The bottom of the Create or Review Auction Application page has a list of every FCC auction—upcoming, ongoing, and completed—and provides an All Auction Releases link for each one. Clicking the link for a particular auction takes you to the page on the Auctions website where you can access selected FCC Public Notices and Orders for that auction.

Each auction entry also has an Announcements link, which produces a list of FCC announcements for that auction.
